Headline:
Sunny spells and showers.

Today:
Bright, breezy day with a mix of sunny spells and occasional blustery showers, the best of the sunshine expected in the east. Becoming cloudier across the Western Isles this afternoon with more persistent rain reaching Lewis by evening. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud and occasionally heavy rain spreads southeast this evening, clearing to clear spells and, mainly in north, a few showers soon after midnight. Strong southwesterly winds with coastal gales easing. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Thursday:
A bright morning with sunny spells and, in north, a few showers. Gradually becoming cloudier from the south through the afternoon with outbreaks of rain later. Freshening southerly winds. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Cloudy and breezy Friday with outbreaks of rain. Good sunny spells in west Saturday but east cloudier with patchy rain. Sunday, largely dry with sunny spells but strengthening southerly winds.
